1	Hoped to gain more practical strategies to engage dads. But the content provided was still really helpful!	9/4/2020 2:48 PM
2	I had to leave training early so may have missed parts of what I was hoping to learn about. I wanted to walk away knowing how to validate the experience of men who have experienced and in turn use violence. How can I say - I hear you that violence was normal to solve problems and communicate for the first 20 years of your life in social and family situations. However that is not a strategy that is going to work for you know. Or can I just say it like that?	9/2/2020 4:21 PM

Q2 Was the level at which the workshop was pitched...

3	reaching out to Fathers at the beginning of engagement	9/4/2020 2:54 PM
4	being mindful of male body language and how this differs to females.	9/4/2020 2:48 PM
5	all	9/4/2020 2:36 PM
6	Everything was great - gave me so much to consider regarding implementing into practice.	9/3/2020 12:02 PM
7	Skills used when engaging/working with fathers.	9/2/2020 6:15 PM
8	Overall group discussions, presenters anecdotes	9/2/2020 4:49 PM
9	Not using child's names with fathers challenged me. I use child's names purposefully to keep them at the centre of the conversation and as a reminder that they are their own person. I am going to trial this approach as I totally see the rationale behind referring to the child as son or daughter.	9/2/2020 4:21 PM

5	too much participant discussions - not enough learning. would be good if powerpoint slides could be handed out or included in handouts emailed to participants.	9/4/2020 2:36 PM
6	David was excellent!! Myself and those who attended the course thoroughly enjoyed the topics and his delivery! Thank you.	9/3/2020 12:02 PM
7	Awesome training. Thank you so much. David was amazing, his story's and experience were invaluable	9/2/2020 6:15 PM
8	Honestly the most engaging and thoughtful zoom-based training I have encountered. Thanks David, you smashed it :)	9/2/2020 4:49 PM
9	David is a wonderful facilitator his ability to connect and make me feel like we already knew each other allowed me to contribute in a group setting. The flip side of that is that I did not feel a pressure to contribute. The dialogue seemed natural and the back and forth had great learnings. He also presented ideas with research, evidence and anecdotal reflections which gave the ideas merit and validity without David 'telling us' this is what to do.	9/2/2020 4:21 PM
